

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT: David Spitzer

E-mail: jsa@toxiclipstickproductions.com

Website: <http://jsa.toxiclipstickproductions.com>

TOXIC LIPSTICK PRODUCTIONS ANNOUNCES "JSA CHRONICLES"

Toxic Lipstick Productions last week went public with its plans for the multi-chapter fan film JSA Chronicles by launching the website and releasing the teaser and poster for Chapter One: Wildcat. A planned nine-part serial covering the lesser-known heroes of the DC Comics universe, JSA Chronicles will be Toxic Lipstick's first completely self-produced fan film. It also will be the directorial and acting debut of Jeff Holland, master costumer and musician from Meridian, MS, who will take up the mantle of Wildcat. Holland, deep in character at the time, commented that "(these) damn kids won't give me any peace. Fine, I'll make a movie."

JSA Chronicles also represents David Spitzer's return to the DC universe, albeit in a primarily behind the camera role. On how similar to or different from his directorial debut, Batman Formulas, this project will be, Spitzer said "Formulas was a learning experience, and we've built on it. We've figured out what works and what doesn't, and this time we're also not shooting, editing, and premiering a film with huge fight scenes and dozens of characters in a three month span. But one thing that we will keep consistent, Jason Todd (Robin II) isn't coming back. After what the Joker did to him, it doesn't matter how hard or how many times Superboy punches a crystal wall, he's staying dead! Take that, DC!"

When asked how the different chapters would play into each other, Spitzer confirmed there would be an overarching story, but that each chapter would be able to stand on its own. "The Justice League Unlimited Cadmus storyline is a good example of how it will work." But when asked for details, he would only cower in fear in a corner, screaming "52! The return of the King! I'll never join you! No sloppy joes on Wednesday?!"

Multiple writers, including Davey Beauchamp (Amazing Pulp Adventures, Starring Mister Adventure podcast, Agency 32: The Cheltenham Affair) will contribute scripts for individual chapters.

JSA Chronicles will shoot Chapter One: Wildcat in 1st-2nd Quarter 2007, with an estimated 3rd Quarter 2007 release. Updates on status will be posted to the website link above.